THOROLD ELECTION COMMENTARY (Friday, November 13, 2026)

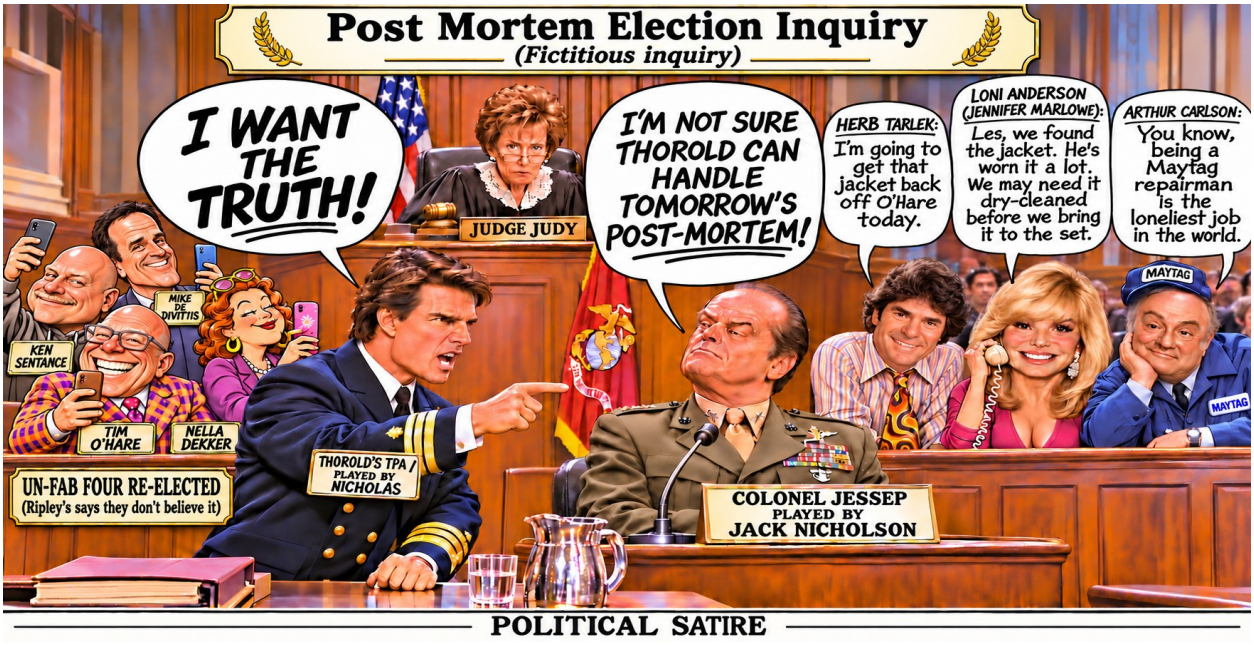

I WANT THE TRUTH! Set-up for tomorrow's bonus post-mortem

Saturday's final Thorold election post-mortem is coming

By Nicholas Bozza | Registered Third-Party Advertiser 2026 — City of Thorold | nbozza@go2cai.ca

Approx. 300 body words | Approx. 1 minute estimated read at a high-school reading pace

POLITICAL OPINION AND SATIRE. The courtroom, testimony, Speedy gag and UN-FAB FOUR negotiation are invented. The Remembrance Day reference is based on one resident's account and has not been independently verified. "Moving violation" is a camera joke. "Registered UN-TPA" is a parody title.

POLITICAL OPINION AND SATIRE. This courtroom parody uses caricatures and scripted dialogue. The depicted selfies, testimony and jacket and wardrobe jokes are fictional. The cartoon makes no claim of theft, a traffic offence or other misconduct. No participation or endorsement by anyone depicted is implied.

Nicholas Bozza | Registered Third-Party Advertiser 2026 — City of Thorold | nbozza@go2cai.ca

In the cartoon above, a Tom Cruise look-alike plays me, Nicholas Bozza, Thorold's Registered TPA. He springs to his feet in the uniform I designed for myself.

TOM CRUISE LOOK-ALIKE, AS NICHOLAS BOZZA: "I WANT THE TRUTH!"

JACK NICHOLSON, AS COLONEL JESSEP: "I'M NOT SURE THOROLD CAN HANDLE THE TRUTH IN TOMORROW'S ELECTION POST-MORTEM!"

STILL ME, IN THAT CUSTOM UNIFORM: "Colonel, before we get into that, could the court stenographer read back the part where I look terrific?"

First of all, take a good look at the uniform I designed for myself to question Colonel Jessep. A little grand for a third-party advertiser, maybe, but it's a hell of a lot better than that loud sports jacket UN-O'Hare keeps wearing. The wardrobe director for the file set at "WKRP in Cincinnati' is still waiting for it back so they can start shooting the remake. Herb Tarlek has been standing in his undershirt since Tuesday. They've already shot around him twice.

Come to think of it, I've seen that exact pattern in that jacket before. A lady in Thorold had it on her car shade drapes. I'm going to ask her if they're still there. If they're gone, UN-O'Hare is in big trouble in my imaginary courtroom. Judge Judy will want to know how a set of car drapes wound up with lapels without the owner's consent.

And those earrings on Nella? I swear they look exactly like the rings on my downstairs shower curtain. I'd better go check. If the curtain's on the floor, Judge Judy can call it Exhibit B.

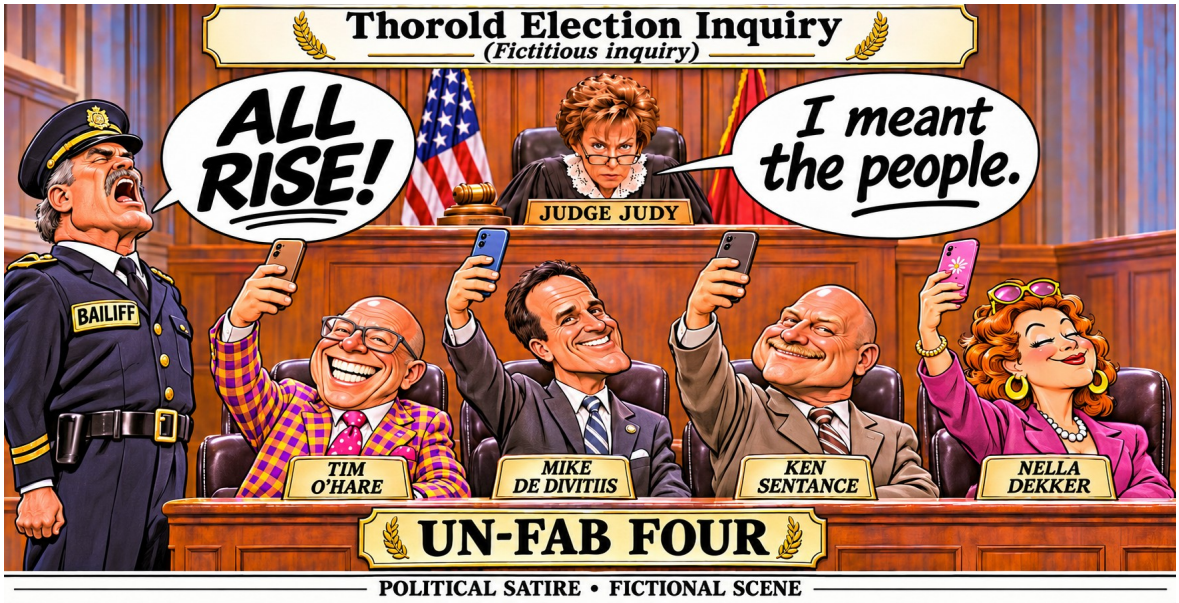

Please read yesterday's article before tomorrow's post-mortem. Lest We Forget to Turn the Camera Around — Remembrance Day and the UN-council UN-selfie (Approx. 2 min)

Tomorrow, I'll turn the camera back around. The final Thorold election post-mortem lands Saturday, November 14. I'll look at what the council vote tells us, what the four returning councillors can show for their first term, and what Thorold taxpayers should ask of the new council over the next four years.

Council can answer for the record. Don't bet on it! The only thing you could bet on is that Environmentally friendly O'Hare, his eye glasses are probably made from petroleum bi-products.

Nicholas Bozza |Registered Third-Party Advertiser (TPA) 2026 — City of Thorold | nbozza@go2cai.ca for the purposes of this joke.

Bonus Cartoon | All Rise!

POLITICAL OPINION AND SATIRE. This inquiry is fictional. The four simultaneous selfies, the bailiff's call and the judge's response were invented. The cartoon makes no factual claim about the councillors' conduct or about any actual hearing. No participation or endorsement by anyone depicted is implied.

Nicholas Bozza | Registered Third-Party Advertiser (TPA) 2026 — City of Thorold | nbozza@go2cai.ca